Fund performance and index history²

The Rising U.S. Dollar ProFund (the "Fund") seeks daily investment results, before fees and expenses, that are -1x the daily performance of the basket of currencies included in the U.S. Dollar Index (the "Benchmark") for a single day, not for any other period. Accordingly, as the value of the U.S. dollar appreciates versus the Benchmark, the performance of the Fund increases. As the value of the U.S. dollar depreciates versus the Benchmark, the performance of the Fund declines.

International investments may involve risk from unfavorable fluctuations in currency values, differences in generally accepted accounting principles, and from economic or political instability.

This fund invests substantially in financial instruments linked to the performance of currencies, such as swap agreements, forward contracts, and futures and options contracts, which may be subject to greater volatility than investments in traditional securities. Certain of these financial instruments will also subject the Fund to counterparty risk and credit risk, which could result in significant losses for the Fund. There are additional risks due to debt, inflation and interest rates, investment activity, and global political and economic concerns.

Many ProFunds routinely employ leveraged investment techniques that magnify gains and losses, and result in greater volatility in value. Each geared (leveraged or inverse) ProFund seeks a return that is a multiple (e.g., 2x, -1x) of the return of an index or other benchmark (target) for a single day. Due to the compounding of daily returns, geared ProFunds' returns over periods other than one day will likely differ in amount and possibly direction from the target return for the same period. These effects may be more pronounced in funds with larger or inverse multiples and in funds with volatile benchmarks. Investors should monitor their ProFunds holdings consistent with their strategies, as frequently as daily. For more on risks, please read the prospecuts.

ProFunds are not suitable for all investors because of the sophisticated techniques the funds employ. Investing involves risk, including the possible loss of principal. ProFunds entail certain risks, including risk associated with the use of derivatives (swap agreements, futures contracts and similar instruments), imperfect benchmark correlation, leverage and market price variance, all of which can increase volatility and decrease performance. For more on correlation, leverage and other risks, please read the prospectus. There is no guarantee any ProFund will achieve its investment objective.

All ProFunds are subject to active investor risk. There are no restrictions on the size and frequency of trades and no transaction fees. The frequent exchanges our policies permit can decrease performance, increase expenses and cause investors to incur tax consequences.
